EIGHT TEAMSTERS RE-ELECTED TO PENNSYLVANIA GENERAL ASSEMBLY AS DEMOCRATS SECURE GOVERNING TRIFECTA

Seven Teamsters Return to the Pennsylvania House; One Teamster Returns to the Pennsylvania Senate

CAMP Hill, PA – The Pennsylvania Conference of Teamsters congratulates eight Teamster members on their re-election to the Pennsylvania General Assembly as Pennsylvania voters maintained Democratic control of state government.

The re-election of these Teamster legislators ensures that working men and women across the Commonwealth will continue to have strong advocates in Harrisburg who understand firsthand the importance of good union jobs, collective bargaining, workplace safety, and retirement security.

TEAMSTERS RE-ELECTED TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Pennsylvania Senate

Lindsey Williams

"These eight Teamsters have earned the trust of their constituents and will continue bringing the perspective of working people to the halls of government," said William Hamilton, President of the Pennsylvania Conference of Teamsters. "Their re-election demonstrates that voters continue to value leaders who understand the challenges facing Pennsylvania's working families and who recognize the dignity of work and the importance of the labor movement. Having eight Teamsters serving in the General Assembly, combined with a Democratic trifecta committed to protecting workers' rights, gives organized labor a stronger voice in shaping the future of the Commonwealth."

The Pennsylvania Conference of Teamsters looks forward to working with Governor Shapiro and the General Assembly to advance policies that strengthen collective bargaining, protect retirement security, support high-quality public services, create family-sustaining union jobs, and improve the lives of working families throughout Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania voters not only re-elected Governor Josh Shapiro, who pledged that Pennsylvania would never become a right-to-work state, they also maintained Democratic control of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives and secured Democratic control of the Pennsylvania Senate (the first time since 1992), creating a Democratic trifecta in Harrisburg. For organized labor, the result is significant. It creates a path for advancing legislation that protects workers' rights, strengthens unions, expands economic opportunity for working families, safeguards prevailing wage standards, and reinforces Pennsylvania's long tradition as a union state.

Pennsylvania voters also reshaped the Commonwealth's congressional delegation. Democrats captured four Republican-held U.S. House seats, contributing to a Democratic majority in Pennsylvania's congressional delegation and helping Democrats regain control of the U.S. House of Representatives.

For organized labor, the election results create a more favorable environment for advancing legislation that protects workers, strengthens unions, and supports middle-class families.

Across the country, voters chose progress over division, inclusion over exclusion, and accountability over corruption. Working families made clear that they want an economy that works for everyone, not just the wealthy and well-connected. The election results create new opportunities to confront wage inequality, protect workers' rights, strengthen unions, and ensure that every American has a fair shot at achieving economic security and a place in the middle class.
